

Weekend Buzz

by Amy Young
Published Apr 15, 2009

Most of us look at Rochester's empty, vacant lots as eyesores, but to two New Yorkers they are a work of art.

Artists Malin Abrahamsson and Ricky Sears created "In Between," an exhibition on display at the Rochester Contemporary Art Center.

"What they were very taken with were the abandoned and vacant lots around the city. Many of which are ringed with this expected post. And ya' know, living in New York, where property is valued differently than it is here, they were particularly interested in those. And it fit with their stylistic tendencies," said Bleu Cease, Rochester Contemporary Art Center executive director.

"In Between" is on display at the Rochester Contemporary Art Center on East Avenue through May 17.

Skin and Steel – the largest display showcasing motorcycles and tattoos, and their evolution over the years from the fringe to the mainstream, comes to Henrietta's Dome Center this weekend.

Check out the best of bike show while you're there Sunday from 1 to 6 p.m.

And they're off! Live racing gets underway at the Finger Lakes Gaming and Racetrack Friday.

Doors to the gaming floor open at 10 a.m.; gates to the racetrack open at 11:30 a.m.

ajl/ay

© 2009 Time Warner Cable
Rochester, NY
All Rights Reserved