State of the (Contemporary Arts in Our) City

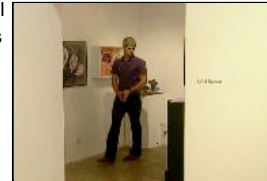

By: Chris Coffey

For more than 30 years Rochester Contemporary Art Center has provided a venue for regional and national artists. Bleu Cease, executive director of the center, says contemporary art can, occasionally, seem at odds with traditional expectations of art. That, says Cease, is precisely the point. The center's goal is to foster and promote new ways of thinking about... everything.

Currently, Rochester Contemporary Art Center presents the second annual 'State of the City' exhibit. This year features a multimedia exhibition with Photographer Lesley Horowitz and Street Artists, FUA Krew.

'State of the City' will run through September 20th. For more information follow the link below.
